

MATTERN FORCED TO QUIT AIR HUNT

Withdraws Hazardous Land Plane From Search for 6 Russians in Arctic

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Aug. 26 (UP).—Jimmy Matern abandoned today the search for six Russian flyers who are lost in the Arctic Circle. He was convinced that further flights in his land plane were dangerous and hopeless. Other flyers continued the quest and Joe Crosson, famed Alaskan "mercy pilot," sped north to Hot Springs, 100 miles from here, where natives said they had seen flares for several nights. The flares were sighted nightly about 11 o'clock, according to the reports. Matern had hoped to repay a debt of gratitude to Sigismund Levanevsky, pilot of the lost plane, who rescued him when he was lost in Siberia on a world flight several years ago. Sir Hubert Wilkins, Arctic explorer, was still searching in a Russian-chartered plane near Aklavik, on the Arctic Circle, and Matern said "we may have some success in his flying boat, but the weather will have to improve before any good can be done." Bob Crandall, Canadian pilot, also was continuing the search near Aklavik.

Hertill was caught running near Lawrence and Willoughby Streets, Brooklyn, where Lunzman said he was set upon by three men, who robbed him of $18.

Blow Me Down, It's Father! The Best Harmonica Player

25-Year-Old Entrant Wins City's Contest for Older Group—Others Tootle to Fame

A serious young man of twenty-five, father of two children, is the best of the city's younger, non-professional harmonica players. If he is not, then the city-wide harmonica contest sponsored by the Parks Department failed miserably of its purpose—which was to bring out the cream of the boys and girls who blow their very souls through the reeds of the mouth organ. The competition was divided into three groups and the finals were held last night before 10,000 persons on the Mall of Central Park.

The Male Supreme
Winner in the oldest group was Richard Gallante of 2337 Hughes Avenue, The Bronx, the serious young parent. Several girls won neighborhood contests in this age class, but in neither this group nor any other, did a girl reach the finals. Second to Mr. Gallante in his group was Ira Lieberman of 205

East Fifty-second Street, Dewey DeBald of 313 East 142d Street, The Bronx, was third. In the children's group—sixteen to eighteen years—Jack Mendelsohn, seventeen, of 921 Hoe Avenue, The Bronx; Stanley Wisser, sixteen, of 463 East Forty-sixth Street, Brooklyn; and Kingdon Miller, seventeen, of 23-16 Forty-fifth Avenue, Astoria, Queens, won first, second and third places, respectively.

The Junior Winners
First-place winner in the youngest group was Harry Blumenthal, fifteen, of 949 Forty-sixth Street, Brooklyn; Leonard Rosenbaur, fifteen, of 327 Woodbine Street, Brooklyn; and Robert Liebeckind, also fifteen, of 541 East 159th Street, The Bronx, placed second and third. First, second and third place winners were awarded gold, silver and bronze medals and harmonicas. Winners in neighborhood contests got bronze medals.

Artists Will Fight Sales Tax To Supreme Court if Need Be

Publishers Join in Drive Against Appellate Decision on Magazine Illustrations

Artists and publishers joined today to fight to the highest courts a ruling by the Appellate Division that art and photo illustrations are subject to the city sales tax, even when lent to publishers for reproduction. The protest movement was led by Noyas McMein and Arthur William Brown, artists, acting for the Society of Illustrators. They engaged John T. McGovern as counsel and said he had been instructed to take the case to the United States Supreme Court if necessary. The Appellate Division's decision became public yesterday, when it was printed in the New York Law Journal. It was handed down June 22, however, in a test case brought by John Newton Howitt against Street & Smith Publications, Inc. Mr. Howitt sought to recover $28.20 paid to the city as a sales tax on pictures drawn for the publishers. The court held that M. Hewitt's permission for the publishers to reproduce the pictures constituted a license for use and was therefore subject to tax. "This is a most outrageous thing," said Miss McMein. "It's utterly unfair, discriminatory and picayunish." Another illustrator, Henry Fockelman, said he recently handed Mayor LaGuardia petitions signed by about 2,000 artists and sympathizers, protesting against the levy, but that the plea had been received with silence.

WPA WORKER'S HONESTY WINS $100—HE KEEPS JOB

Instead of losing his job on a WPA pollution project, Morris Eisler of 880 Bryant Avenue, The Bronx, now has $100, his job and a widespread reputation for honesty. He was slated to be transferred to another project when he found a $1,000 negotiable bond and returned it to its owner. He was given a $100 reward by the owner of the bond, and WPA authorities decided to allow him to remain on his job.

COMPLAINANT DROPS CASE; THREE FREED IN L. I. FRAUD

Peter F. Collieran, former Mayor of Massapequa Park, L. I.; Frank Cryan, a justice of the peace of the village, and Michael Brady, justice of the peace-elect, today were freed out of a real estate deal. An indictment against them was dismissed by General Sessions Judge Freschi yesterday after the complainant, Michael Fitzpatrick of 310 East 156th Street, The Bronx, had said restitution had been made to him and that he did not desire to press the prosecution.

What some of America's aquatic stars say about Camels

SPRINGBOARD ACE. Lovely Jane Fauntz Manske, of Chicago, says: "It's Camels for me! Good digestion is of prime importance to me. The tenseness of competition and all the changes of diet when traveling are liable to upset digestion. But I smoke Camels at mealtimes and after and my digestion runs smoothly."
The best of meals tastes better and digests easier when you have an abundant flow of digestive fluids—alkaline digestive fluids so vital to good digestion. Smoking Camels encourages this flow—helps you enjoy a sense of well-being. Steady smokers say: "Camels set me right!"

HAROLD ("DUTCH") SMITH, who holds Olympic diving championships, would "walk a mile for a Camel!" "I find a great deal of pleasure in Camels," says "Dutch." "I long ago discovered that smoking a Camel restores my flow of energy after a diving meet or a strenuous exhibition—gives me an invigorating life!" And "Dutch" adds that there's more real flavor in Camel's finer tobaccos!

THREE-TIME OLYMPIC WINNER in the spectacular high-diving event. Dorothy Poynton Hill, of Los Angeles—a steady Camel smoker—appreciates Camel's mildness. "As an athlete," she says, "I prefer Camels because they don't get on my nerves. And then, in common with so many other women," she adds, "I like Camels because they have such a rich, delicate flavor and never tire my taste."

"PETE" DESJARDINS—another famous diver—speaking: "Divers like a mild cigarette that doesn't upset their nerves. That's why I prefer to smoke Camels. They're so mild I can smoke as many as I like. Camels never jangle my nerves."

LENORE KIGHT WINGARD—a champion of champions. She has broken 7 World's Records—15 Nat'l Records—in speed swimming. Lenore comments on smoking: "Camels are certainly mild. They never jangle my nerves. After an exhausting swim, I get a lift with a Camel."

AQUAPLANE EXPERT. Here's Miss Gloria Wheeden, who can do head-stands and other difficult feats on an aquaplane. She is about to enjoy a picnic luncheon on the speed boat. "I always think of smoking Camels and eating as going together," Miss Wheeden says. "I get so much benefit out of smoking Camels at mealtimes. I enjoy the sense of well-being that good digestion brings me."
